PRIVACY STATEMENT

We are happy about your visit to our website and about your interest in our company and our products. The security of your private-related data like your name, address, telephone number or e-mail represents our major concern, which we are respecting in the course of our business processes. We do conduct our web-activities in compliance with the laws on privacy and on data security. The following content will explain to you which information we eventually gather and how we deal with it.

Private-related data

Without your approval we do not gather in our website any personal-related data. You are the only one, who can decide, within a registration or an inquiry, if you wish to let us know such data or not. We are usually utilizing your personal-related data for treating your enquiry or for granting you access to special information or quotations.

Automatically gathered data

When you are using our websites, information is occasionally gathered automatically (but not by means of a registration) which is related to a certain person (e.g. browser type or version, used system software, referrer URL (the website that was consulted before), IP address (time of the server inquiry)). For Müssel these data are not relatable to certain people. Any combination of these data with other data sources will not be done.

Cookies

When you are visiting our websites or get registered, it can happen that we store information in the form of a „cookie“ on your computer which will recognize you in the course of your next visit. Should you generally refuse the usage of cookies, you can adjust your internet-browser in such a way so that it deletes cookies from your hard drive, blocks all cookies and warns you before a cookie is going to be stored.

Cookies are consisting of short text-files that are mostly loaded from a Web site on a PC. Cookies do fulfill diverse intended aims, for example, they enable a website to match your interests or to save your code word, so that you do not need to enter a new one each time. However they never represent a risk because they do not have any "active" ability. Their application cannot be faulty at all. They only contain information needed for a more convenient internet usage.

Links to external websites

Within our websites, we are also referring to third-party websites. Please note that we do not have any influence on the content and data protection standard of external websites and their owners. The company Müssel Maschinenbau GmbH assumes no liability whatsoever regarding this.

Safety

We are using technical and organizational safety measures in order to protect your data which are managed by us against manipulation, loss, destruction and unauthorized access.

Right to be informed

Please send all potential enquiries/comments related to this statement to the company MÜSSEL MASCHINENBAU GmbH, with headquarters at Reichelsweiherstraße 8 – 95615 Marktrechwitz – Tel.: +49 9231 9980-0 – Fax: +49 9231 9980-80 – E-Mail: kontakt@muessel.com, who will be responsible for handling the private-related data. Upon request Müssel can let you know as promptly as possible and in a written form and according to applicable law if some of your personal information (and which kind of it) was stored on our system. In case wrong information should be stored in spite of our efforts towards correctness and currentness of data, we will then rectify this according to your wishes.
